UM "J" SCHOOL GETS STOCKGROWERS SCHOLARSHIP

The Montana Stockgrowers Association scholarship for a student in the University of Montana School of Journalism, awarded for the first time last week, has been made into a permanent award, Dean Nathan B. Blumberg reported Friday.

Ralph Miracle, secretary of the association, said that a $100 award would be presented annually to a student in journalism or radio-television who has a ranch or rural background and a good academic record.

The first check went to Cathe Wolhowe, a senior in the School of Journalism, at the tenth annual Dean Stone Night on the University campus.

Announcement of the award, the third new one in journalism this year, brings the School of Journalism annual scholarship program to $3,925, according to Dean Blumberg.
